

Janet Brewer Named Vice President of Corporate Communications for NCR

March 8, 2007 at 2:03 PM EST

DAYTON, Ohio--(BUSINESS WIRE)--March 8, 2007--NCR Corporation (NYSE:NCR) today announced that Janet Brewer has been named vice president of corporate communications for the company.

Brewer, who will report to NCR President and Chief Executive Officer Bill Nuti, will lead the strategic direction, planning and implementation of the company's internal and external global communications programs.

"The effective deployment of broad-based multichannel communications initiatives becomes increasingly important as we expand our global leadership in self-service technologies and execute our strategic separation of NCR and Teradata," said Nuti. "Janet will build and sustain NCR's global brand awareness and successfully position the company with key constituencies worldwide."

Brewer led the corporate communications team at LexisNexis, a leading provider of information and services solutions, and founded and led J. Brewer Communications, a strategic marketing and communications business, prior to joining NCR as director of community relations.

Brewer also held a number of positions of increasing responsibility, including director of community and public relations, at The Reynolds and Reynolds Company, a leading provider of automotive retailing technology solutions.

In addition, her career includes marketing and public information positions at Monarch Marking (now Paxar) and Mosier Industries.

Brewer serves on the board of Dayton History, chairs the NCR Archive Council and is past president of the Boonshoft Museum of Discovery board of trustees. She is a member of the Public Relations Society of America and is a past recipient of the International Association of Business Communicators Communications Leadership Award.
