

NCR Names Jim Powell to Head Communications and Energy Business Solutions Group

August 11, 2000 at 12:01 PM EDT

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 11 /PRNewswire/ -- NCR Corporation today announced that it has named Jim Powell vice president of the Teradata Division's Communications and Energy Business Solutions Group.

Powell joins NCR from FarEasTone Telecommunications, a joint venture of AT&T Wireless and the Far Eastern Group in Taiwan, where he was an NCR data warehousing customer in his capacity as vice president of technology.

Powell, who has 24 years of telecommunications industry experience, will be based in NCR's Woodbridge, New Jersey office and will report to NCR Vice President of Application Development Tony Barrese. Powell's appointment was effective June 2000.

"With nine of the world's top fourteen telecommunication's companies as customers, NCR is clearly dominating this industry's data warehousing market. We are fortunate to have someone with Jim's experience joining us as we maintain our leadership position and continue to expand to emerging markets," Barrese said.

Powell, whose telecommunications experience also includes positions with GTE, will be responsible for setting strategy, designing solutions, creating external partnerships and working with the NCR sales and marketing teams on the proper deployment and execution of the programs.

"My long career in telecommunications has given me the breadth of operational and development experience needed to understand the telecommunication customers' needs and the technical savvy to implement a strategic vision," Powell said. "I'm excited about my role at NCR and look forward to contributing to the future growth and success of NCR's data warehouse business."
