NCR Corporation (NYSE: NCR), the world's leading supplier of self-service solutions, and eFunds Corporation (Nasdaq: EFDS), a leading provider of electronic payment, risk management and related professional services, today announced they will further extend the reach of NCR's advanced deposit technology. The new technology enables the ATM user to deposit cash or checks without an envelope, thereby increasing customer convenience and decreasing processing costs incurred by the financial institution.

NCR has certified eFunds Corporation's CONNEX(TM) software solution to support cash acceptance and check deposit functions using NCR's APTRA(TM) software. CONNEX is an electronic funds transfer (EFT) processing solution which processes over 15 billion transactions worldwide annually.

"eFunds is excited to enhance the CONNEX platform to support NCR's APTRA and advanced deposit modules," said Hugh Gallagher, vice president, Payment Solutions, EFT Product Development, eFunds Corporation. "We see strong demand for this offer in the international marketplace, which is why we believe our relationship with NCR is invaluable. We can leverage both their #1 global position and the capability of driving the transaction through Microsoft(R) Windows(R) NT or XP."

Andy Orent, NCR vice president of global sales and services, said, "We believe eFunds is uniquely positioned to capture a large share of the deposit marketplace through this extension of both our offerings. eFunds can provide advanced deposit technology as an in-house solution on CONNEX or as a data center solution."
