

Travelex and NCR Sign Deal to Deliver Convenience ATMs to Major U.K. Retail Outlets

February 27, 2002 at 10:02 AM EST

LONDON, Feb 27, 2002 /PRNewswire via COMTEX/ -- NCR Corporation (NYSE: NCR) today announced a deal to supply The Travelex Group with 200 Personas 84 and 50 Personas 70 automated teller machines (ATMs) that will be deployed at major retail outlets across the U.K. during 2002. As part of the multimillion-pound deal, NCR will also provide associated software and maintenance services.

"This deal allows Travelex to supplement the number of bank-sponsored ATMs it has at airports throughout the U.K. with its own branded ATMs, expanding its presence at new high street retail locations," said Keith Richbell, managing director at Travelex.

The agreement includes software to allow retailers to manage centrally the look and feel of the ATM screens to reinforce brand image. The images on the ATM screen could match a retailer's billboard, television or Internet advertising. In addition retailers could offer local in-store promotions to increase revenue of certain items.

Travelex's entrance into the U.K. market as an independent ATM deployer follows its success with its own branded machines in the U.S. and Australia explains Jeff Lutz, vice president for NCR's Financial Solutions division. "Travelex's foundation in the retail and banking environment gives them an excellent opportunity to voice the advantages of an on-site ATM to increase revenue generation through growth in consumer footfall, offering their consumers convenient access to their money."
