

Just in Time for Fall, Teradata Customers Migrate West for Annual User Group Conference

September 18, 2003 at 3:40 PM EDT

DAYTON, Ohio, Sep 18, 2003 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- Thousands of data warehousing and analytical applications customers of Teradata, a division of NCR Corporation (NYSE:NCR), and key industry luminaries will come together at the 17th PARTNERS User Group Conference and Expo, Teradata's annual customer-led event, Sept. 21-25 at the Washington State Convention and Trade Center in Seattle.

Customer registrations to date have exceeded those of any previous year, indicating that interest in Teradata's warehousing and analytical solutions continues to grow as customers seek innovative ways to realize value from their Teradata investment.

Chief information officers, chief marketing officers, database administrators and project coordinators from 43 countries will be able to participate in more than 180 conference sessions representing business, technology and management. With such large customer numbers in addition to the attendance of Teradata leaders, partners and industry analysts, Teradata expects that PARTNERS 2003 will be the world's largest data warehousing event.

"The PARTNERS conference is where today's leaders in enterprise data warehousing and analytics come to share ideas, and where those who aspire to be leaders come to learn," said Bob Fair, Teradata's chief marketing officer.
