

Teradata Named One of the Elite Global Information Technology Providers; CMP Media Intelligent Enterprise Magazine Announces Eighth Annual Editors' Choice Awards and Selection of "The Dozen" Leading Technology Providers

May 3, 2006 at 10:26 AM EDT

DAYTON, Ohio--(BUSINESS WIRE)--May 3, 2006--Intelligent Enterprise magazine, a CMP Media publication, has selected Teradata, a division of NCR Corporation (NYSE:NCR), as one of the 12 elite global vendors that are providing critical leadership for organizations focused on becoming intelligent enterprises. The magazine's eighth annual Editors' Choice Awards named Teradata number four on the "The Dozen" list and also the leader in customer intelligence. Teradata has been on the "The Dozen" list for four consecutive years.

Intelligent Enterprise's "The Dozen" list is a widely-respected annual evaluation by the magazine's senior editorial staff that recognizes vendors that provide exceptional vision, technology innovation and customer leadership in attaining the objectives of the intelligent enterprise.

David Stodder, editorial director of Intelligent Enterprise, writes in the May issue of the magazine that "Teradata provides the platform for many a mighty enterprise data warehouse. Plus, Teradata is no stranger to real time. The company's 'active' data warehouse concepts and business integration technology partnerships keep Teradata's customers on the cutting edge."

The Teradata(R) enterprise data warehouse and enterprise analytics enable companies to make better decisions, faster. Teradata's customers gain a critical business advantage from the speed and efficiency with which Teradata analyzes customer behavior and other business information and delivers business intelligence to decision-makers--from strategic analysis for senior executives to operational intelligence for employees on the front lines.

"This recognition of Teradata reflects the success of our market-leading customers that rely on enterprise analytics to drive their customer growth and corporate profitability," said Bob Fair, chief marketing officer of Teradata. "We are very proud to be included in "The Dozen" for a fourth consecutive year. And, we are honored that the thought leaders at Intelligent Enterprise magazine have acknowledged Teradata's leadership each year since the start of the Editors' Choice Awards."
