

NCR Payment Services Announces New Equinox Device Integration for EMV-Certified Payment Solutions

January 15, 2019 at 8:00 AM EST

ATLANTA--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Jan. 15, 2019-- NCR Corporation (NYSE: NCR), a leading enterprise solution provider for retailers, today announced newly integrated Equinox Luxe devices for NCR Connected Payments, a SaaS-based platform that provides a secure payment route for retailers, ensuring complete data and transmission security from PIN pad to processor.

"NCR's Connected Payments, combined with the newly integrated Equinox Luxe devices, allows our Retail customers to interact with their consumers wherever they are – at the checkout, in aisles or on the move," said David Wilkinson, senior vice president and general manager Retail at NCR. "With our future-oriented Connected Payments solution retailers are able to make the best long-term technology and hardware investment decisions that align with and support their growth strategy."

NCR engaged Coalfire, a trusted cybersecurity advisor that helps private and public-sector organizations avert threats, close gaps and effectively manage risk, to assess the Connected Payments platform as a PCI-validated P2PE solution, with initial support for Equinox devices. Coalfire has submitted the final report to the PCI SSC and anticipates the listing of the validated solution in the first quarter of this year.

NCR will showcase its industry leading solutions at NRF 2019 at the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center in New York City, at booth #3419 from January 13-15. The NCR booth demonstrates immersive customer journeys that highlight the different ways people prefer to shop. This ranges from social-influenced shopping at home, consultative selling at the store, self-scanning, customer engagement the pump, and off-premise delivery. NCR helps power all of these transactions from the back office to the checkout and everything in-between to enable retailers to adapt, evolve and thrive in a digital-first world.
