Welch Systems to Deploy NCR's iATMglobal Solution; iATMglobal Leverages Power of PC-based ATMs

October 8, 2002 at 10:02 AM EDT

ORLANDO, Fla., Oct 8, 2002 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- NCR Corporation (NYSE:NCR) today announced the deployment of its iATMglobal Cash and Shop e-commerce solution by Welch Systems in the St. Louis, Mo., area. The solution will be operational on over 180 NCR EasyPoint(TM) automated teller machines (ATMs) situated in convenience stores and gas stations in and around St. Louis.

iATMglobal's turn-key infrastructure enables individual or networked ATMs to offer new products and services to the consumer. The solution is specifically targeted at the retail off-premise banking and independent sales organization market. Transactions available through iATMglobal include multiple long-distance phone cards, movie tickets and pre-paid wireless recharge. Further product offerings such as travel and event tickets, flower arrangements and gifts will soon be implemented.

Welch Systems Vice President of Sales Jeff Hewitt sees the availability of such services and NCR's iATMglobal solution as a key differentiator, bringing more convenience to the consumer and increasing the value proposition of the ATM.

"Our customers are excited to be the first in this space to offer new products and transaction capabilities on their ATMs," said Hewitt. "The iATMglobal technology moves Welch Systems ahead of our competition."

Welcoming today's announcement, Robb Straub, head of NCR's iATMglobal, said, "We believe iATMglobal brings a whole new dimension to convenience ATM deployment, turning previously untapped or marginal ATM locations into revenue generators for the deployer and site owners. New value-add services will increase foot traffic in stores and enhance customer loyalty."
